Eventually expand beyond South Florida

 WHAT ATLAS PRINTERS IS GOOD AT

TEST positioning:

Custom apparel + professional printing + personalized service.

Instead of forcing every customer into the same product, Atlas determines what printing method makes the most sense.

For example:

Customer wants a company logo on 50 polos → embroidery may be appropriate.

Customer wants a detailed colorful graphic on 50 T-shirts → DTF may be appropriate.

Customer wants a vibrant design on a sublimation-compatible product → sublimation may be appropriate.

Customer needs 500 business cards → commercial printing.

 COMMON CUSTOMER QUESTIONS

"Can you print this design?"

Yes, Atlas can review the artwork and determine the best production method.

"Can you do front and back?"

Yes, depending on the product and printing method.

"Can you embroider my logo?"

Yes, depending on the product and artwork.

"Can you do 50 shirts?"

Yes. Atlas can quote bulk orders based on the exact requirements.

"Can I get it tomorrow?"

Atlas should check production capacity before promising a deadline.

"Do you ship?"

Yes, depending on the order and destination.

"Can you help me with my design?"

Yes, depending on the type of design assistance required.

IMPORTANT COMPANY RULES

These are TEST rules for this temporary knowledge document:

Never invent a price.

Never invent a discount.

Never promise a deadline without checking.

Never promise a product Atlas cannot produce.

Never promise a refund without knowing the policy.

Never promise free work.

Never claim an owner said something unless documented.

Never guarantee perfect results.

Never lie to a customer.

When information is missing, ask the customer a useful question.
